

University of Puerto Rico
Río Piedras Campus
College of General Studies
Department of Spanish

ANNOUNCEMENT FOR TENURE TRACK TEACHING POSITION

Type of appointment: Tenure Track -Teaching
Effective Date: August 2021

The Spanish Department of the College of General Studies of the University of Puerto Rico, Río Piedras Campus is a unit that organizes its academic work around inter and transdisciplinary in courses and student services.

Requirements

Doctoral degree (PhD) from an accredited university in any of the following areas: Literature (Hispanic, Puerto Rican, Caribbean, Latin American), or Hispanic Linguistics, or the Teaching of Spanish Language.
Capacity for research.
Experience in the preparation of courses at a higher level and teaching experience, in person and online, according to the new methodological and technological trends in education, including distance education and the integration of knowledge.
Demonstrated commitment with publishing and the dissemination of knowledge.
Availability for thesis supervision.
Commitment with the designing of proposals and research projects.
Commitment with search for external funding.

Work Description

Teach courses of Spanish. Willingness to offer courses in other departments and programs in the College of General Studies. Correlate coursework with local and international social issues. Create and teach new courses in diverse modalities of teaching: face to face, hybrid and online. Develop and disseminate academic research. Publish research in academic journals or integrate it into creative work, for local and international dissemination. Provide institutional service, work in committees, attend seminars and workshops for professional training, participate