Job description and responsibilities

The Digital Humanities Fellow will be integrated into the work of the Caribbean Digital Scholarship Collective (CDSC) from July 1, 2022 to June 30, 2023. The Collective is an initiative of Caribbean digital humanities scholars lead by Barnard College and is sponsored by the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation. At the University of Puerto Rico-Rio Piedras Campus, the CDSC integrates resources from the College of General Studies, the College of Humanities, and the Center for Interdisciplinary Research and Undergraduate Learning (CRiAS). The Digital Humanities Fellow will be part of these efforts by developing, supporting and promoting research in digital humanities at the Rio Piedras campus. The DH Fellow will also develop theoretical and methodological models, as well as academic, conceptual and technical structures based on the experiences and practices articulated in the Caribbean region. and their diasporas. The Digital Humanities Fellow is subsidized by The Mellon Foundation, therefore, the funding for salary as well as the fringe benefits come from the grant.

The Digital Humanities Scholar is expected to organize and develop a series of multimodal and multimedia training sessions, as well as related academic activities, in the main dimensions of digital humanities for participants in the project. To achieve these goals the DH Fellow will receive intellectual support of the members of Caribbean Digital Scholarship Collective, experts in digital humanities. The selected candidate will be in charge of creating a practical and theoretical training program for professors, librarians, researchers and graduate students that includes lectures, demonstration workshops and intensive modules on topics related to digital humanities. Identified areas of interest are:

1. DH and data visualization
2. Computer sciences essentials and digital humanities
3. DH methods and best practices
4. DH Pedagogies
5. Ethical aspects of Digital Humanities

Candidates will be evaluated based on their expertise and experience in Digital Humanities, their understanding of local and Caribbean culture, their proficiency in English and Spanish, and their commitment to community organizations in Puerto Rico. This position will give the candidate the opportunity to work directly with active grassroots communities interested in developing digital projects that allow the dissemination of community work carried out on the Island.

Required qualifications:

Candidates must meet the following criteria:

1. A MA and/or MILS in Information Sciences, Cultural Management, Digital Preservation, Digital Humanities, or related fields is required by the appointment start date, in the last 5 years.
2. Evidence of having carried out interdisciplinary studies or research in digital humanities and information sciences, or shared studies.
3. Detailed research plan that involve professors, libraries, and researchers from the University of Puerto Rico.

4. Be a United States citizen and/or resident.
5. Evidence of research and teaching at the university level.
6. Command of Spanish and English languages.
