TENURE-TRACK TEACHING POSITION ANNOUNCEMENT

The School of Arquitecture, at the Río Piedras Campus of the University of Puerto Rico, is interested in recruiting for a tenure track teaching position, effective on January 2, 2023.

Requirements:

1. Professional degree in architecture, Master's, or Doctoral degree granted by a recognized and accredited institution.
2. Minimum teaching experience of three (3) years in architectural design courses and other courses on architectural representation, visualization, evaluation, and performance measurement (Building Information Modeling-BIM, Geographic Information System-GIS, and others), focused on the measurement of architectural performance, at the undergraduate and/or graduate level in a recognized and accredited architecture school.
3. Minimum of five (5) years recent professional experience in the practice of architecture (design, development of construction documents and coordination of disciplines).
4. Preferably with demonstrated experience in research applied to architecture and/or interdisciplinary areas related to the profession.
5. Knowledge of architectural representation, visualization, and analysis.
6. Preferably with an active professional license in architecture.
7. Capacity to direct and counsel Master's degree thesis and research.
8. Demonstrate capacity for in person and online teaching.
9. Experience in research, creative work, and architectural work.
10. Commitment to pursue external funding.
11. Publications in candidate's area of expertise.

Responsibilities:

The tasks that correspond to this teaching position include teaching architectural design courses and other specialized in-person and online courses, availability to offer weekend and evening courses, at undergraduate and graduate levels, with a demonstrated particular interest in emergent architectural production, research, and publications in the candidate's area of expertise, mentoring, participation in academic committees, and administrative support as part of the contractual obligations.

The recruited teacher will be responsible for offering architectural design courses and other courses focused on architectural representation and visualization (Building Information Modeling-BIM, Geographic Information System-GIS, and others), and on the measurement of architectural performance aimed at systems integration (structural, environmental control, security, envelope assemblages, and others), as well as forge collaborations and apply for interdisciplinary research funding with industries and institutions related to architecture and construction.

Required Documents: *
1. Letter of intent.
2. Updated Curriculum Vitae of maximum (5) pages.
3. Official professional and academic credentials of all degrees.
4. Evidence of certifications in BIM and GIS program management.
5. Evidence of Master and/or Doctoral thesis supervision and/or counseling, as well as courses offered at university level indicating modality: in-person, online and/or hybrid.

6. Evidence of recent presentations at conferences, publications, and research work.
7. Portfolio of professional and creative work.
8. Teaching and Research philosophy statements, maximum one (1) page philosophy.
9. Statement of intention to pursue external funding.
10. Two recommendation letters.

*All submitted documents must have an English or Spanish translation.
